

Dokholyan Group

Postdoctoral Position in Pain Research

Our group is working to uncover the molecular and structural underpinnings of pain perception and, in collaboration with Algynomics Inc., approaches to control pain through a novel framework for drug discovery. We are looking for a molecular biologist/biochemist who would integrate with a team consisting of a medicinal chemist and cell and structural biologists. A Postdoctoral Fellowship is potentially available to qualified candidates.

Special Requirement: USA citizenship or green card holders only.

Start Date: As early as possible.

Contact: Prof. Nikolay Dokholyan (dokh@unc.edu)

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics

dokhlab.org